Here is a poem from Peggy's Scrap Book.

I have need in me for quiet places,
For Rugged hillsides and a shady tree,
And where, against the sky, a mountain traces,
The Blend of finite with infinity
I have need in me for all things holy,
The stir of Lord in Winter in woods, where Life slips and surely, slowly,
The closed heart opens to the morning good.

1942

Dick I send this to you before; I write so much I can't remember.

My Hunters. (3).

The hunters are roaming
the forests.
Mr Bear you had better
watch out,
Although I confess you are safer
Than as though my three sons were out!
Out hunting I mean, How they love it,
Its something they cannot describe
The thrill, the joy, through their heartstrings,
Make them suddenly come Alive!..

Next year Ill finish it for you!

Mountains
Give Me Your Strength

"Mountains, give me of your strength,
Of your calmness give — Here within your shadows daily Teach me how to live!

"Give me fortitude and courage,
Show me how to stand
When faltering faith and broken dreams Press close on either hand.

"Emblems of God's greatness, Let goodness be my goal —
Teach me the meaning of life itself,
Help me to find my soul."
